<http://thetiquetteauthority.com>The Be Well Women championed Black women between the ages of 18 -29 in California to put their health first.

Black women in California are more likely to experience poor birth outcomes and are four times more likely to die from a pregnancy-related cause than any other ethnicity. The effects of this alarming health disparity not only affect Black women and children – it destroys Black communities. Many pregnancy-related complications can be avoided with greater access to information.
